REFLECTION
1 Thessalonians 4:13. But we do not want you to be uninformed, brothers and sisters, about those who have died, so that you may not grieve as others do who have no hope.

Hopelessness is an eager companion to the grieving soul. It sidles up to us on dark days, filling us with doubts, muddying our thoughts and silencing the voices of supportive friends.

In these versus, Paul lays out a divine solution to our suffering, describing a homecoming like no other. He lets us know that "God will bring with him those who have died." What a powerful image! Picture the person you've lost, the one you miss every day. Now, imagine them traveling with God toward a great eternal reunion!

It's easy to find ourselves isolated in the loneliness of grief, but God has a different plan – a plan for all of us, in God's timing, to come together once again.

There is always hope, for this is not the end of the story!

SOMETHNG TO THINK ABOUT
None of us is alone in this world. Each of us is a vital piece of the great mosaic of humanity as a whole.
- St John Paul II
